The following 104 lots of Roman silver denarii and antoniniani are believed to represent a hoard recently discovered in Central Europe and sent to us for disposal at unrestricted auction.

Struck over a period of about 185 years, from Vespasian to Valerian I, the group is unusually strong in the Severi and offers a fine opportunity to fill in some of those blank spaces. While the coins have been numbered according to Cohen no further subdivision to mints has been attempted. The families of Severus, Elagabalus and Alexander offer particularly fertile fields for research as more than one mint was striking during those reigns.
